Plan Now for Energy Savings

LAND PRESERVATION & SUSTAINABILITY COMMITTEE

With the summer heat behind us (hopefully!) and the winter cold still ahead, take some time now to reduce your personal energy costs. Our township continues its energy planning, but homeowners have some great opportunities.

EFFICIENCY

The easiest changes are those that simply increase the effectiveness of what you already own or already do. If you follow WBT social media or website, you know that we've been making some suggestions over the summer (with more to come). You can plan now to adjust interior temperatures for the winter. EnergySTAR suggests 65° as the optimum temperature for balancing comfort with efficiency. The smaller the difference between the interior and exterior temperatures, the slower the rate of energy transfer from one to the other, so your house will stay warmer longer and take less energy to maintain that warmth.

ALTERNATIVES

If you remember your summer air conditioning bills, you might explore solar power for your home or business this fall. Though current economic conditions may be squeezing your wallet, know that the cost of solar installation has decreased an amazing 60% over the last decade. Additionally, a 26% tax credit for systems installed in 2022 is available from the federal government (dropping to 22% in 2023). One local group that can help you estimate solar size and costs, and help you connect with vetted installers, is Solarize Greater West Chester Area (<https://solarizesoutheastpa.com/gwc/>). Another exciting idea gaining traction, and that we hope to see made legal in Pennsylvania, is community solar. These are projects in which municipalities or other groups buy or lease a solar array that provides power to multiple customers. The best and cleanest way to achieve energy independence is to generate it ourselves! 🌿

Solarize Greater West Chester

Humphry Marshall–His Legacy

THIS IS THE 5TH AND LAST IN A SERIES OF ARTICLES DETAILING THE LIFE OF WEST BRADFORD'S OWN HUMPHRY MARSHALL.

BY: MARK SLOUF

When Humphry Marshall died in 1801 he had achieved the highest scientific accolades of anyone in his time. He was internationally known and sought after for his work in Botany and Horticulture. He was a visionary with many firsts in multiple scientific disciplines. In the infancy of our newborn nation, he planted the seed, pun intended, for Westward exploration, forest conservation, scientific farming practices and more. William Darlington, one of his great botanical successors, termed Humphry fifty years ahead of his time.

And yet, Humphry considered himself a simple Quaker farmer serving his local community in government, philanthropic interests and was considered a “solid Exemplary Friend” at his West Bradford Meeting. While at one time owning two slaves, not concurrently, with the Quaker's anti-slavery movement Humphry freed them and became a figurehead leader against the ownership of slaves. While Humphry Marshall's achievements may have faded in time, one of his most tangible legacies today is in the gardens and arboretums of Southeastern Pennsylvania. Between Humphry and his cousin John Bartram, they influenced a long line of botanists and horticulturists in our region. Most notable is Marshall's influence on the brothers Samuel and Joshua Pierce, relatives of Marshall, who established their Pierce Arboretum, locally called Pierce Park. Years later, after successive owners, Mr. Pierre S. DuPont, so impressed with the still existing garden, purchased it. Today it is internationally known as Longwood Gardens.

In 1805, the village of Marshallton was named after Humphry Marshall. In 1848, Marshall Square Park and Marshall Street in West Chester were named in his honor. In 1913, the Chester County Historical Society erected a memorial stone at his former property. This October 8, 2022, The Friends of Martin's Tavern and West Bradford Township will dedicate the Martin's Tavern/Humphry Marshall Historical Park in Marshallton. Please join us for a day of celebration for West Bradford's most famous son. 🍷

West Bradford Fire Company

Did you know that across the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania volunteer fire fighters save their communities approximately 10 billion dollars per year? That number was derived from a study in 2019 and is likely higher now. Did you know that West Bradford Fire Co is all volunteer? We are regular residents with families, full time jobs, students, retirees, and have commitments; however, we still respond during the day and night, in all weather conditions to help our community in times of need.

Our responses consist of automobile accidents, brush fires, houses fires, storm related incidents, assist to other agencies just to name a few; we even rescue cats from trees. We train every Thursday evening and on other days as planned. How about stopping by on a Thursday evening to check us out. We will provide you with training, personal protective equipment, and an exciting experience that will last a lifetime. We start our members as young as 14 years of age, assisting them with training and skills they need to become a first responder. Come up and learn firsthand how we have assisted with some of our members future careers in public safety, becoming paid firefighters, police officers and other fields that help in their communities.

As always, we appreciate your support during our annual fund drive. These funds help us defray our operating costs throughout the year.

See you soon, hopefully on a Thursday evening at 7:00pm in one of our stations. 🍁
